SCHOOL MISSION STATEMENT
In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences (HSS), we are teacher-scholars committed to the study of human nature and human creations. We seek to deepen our understanding of history and literature, inquire into the character of cultures and societies and, lastly, support the value of ethical and moral reflection.

Our HSS teacher-scholars cultivate in students the skills of creative problem-solving, critical thinking, and writing to discover. We also engage these students in activities that prepare them for productive civic engagement, understanding of different global perspectives and learning as a lifelong pursuit.

SCHOOL GOALS
Given our mission statement and simply by providing instruction in the humanities and social sciences to over 15,000 students in approximately 550 sections each term, we have demonstrated support of the institutional mission:
1. through a strong core curriculum, to develop an understanding of the arts, humanities, mathematics, the natural sciences and the social sciences.
2. to encourage students to become conscious of the importance of political, social, economic, and scientific issues of their time.

Our goals in humanities and social sciences are to help assure that graduates of the College of Charleston:

1. Had highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning;
2. Developed global awareness;
3. Acquired depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline;
4. Were trained in the method of scholarly inquiry and research

STRATEGIES AND TACTICS IN THE COLLEGE’S STRATEGIC PLAN YOUR SCHOOL WOULD PLACE AS HIGHEST PRIORITY
The College’s strategies are all important to the success of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, especially since our School’s programs are the core of a liberal arts and sciences education. However, some College-wide strategies and tactics are most in-line with our School-specific goals.

1. Enhance the undergraduate academic core.
   a. Provide each student a personalized experience that integrates classroom learning with at least two of the following: research and creative activities, civic engagement, study away, internships and peer education.
   b. Enhance undergraduate academic programs that are strongly linked to the history, traditions, culture and environment of the Charleston and the Lowcountry.
   c. Develop academic programs utilizing and/or based at Dixie Plantation.
   d. Embed global competencies into general education and major requirements.
2. Develop nationally recognized graduate programs.
3. Develop and retain a highly qualified and diverse faculty and staff.
4. Recruit, enroll and retain an academically distinguished, well-prepared and diverse student body.
5. Provide up-to-date facilities and infrastructure to enhance academic, co-curricular and extra-curricular programs.

6. Collaborate with local, national and international institutions to leverage higher education for a stronger South Carolina
   a. Develop and expand research partnerships and initiatives.
   b. Expand study abroad opportunities for students.

7. Pursue national recognition for the College of Charleston’s personalized liberal arts and sciences education and for the distinctive features of its undergraduate and graduate programs.

SOME HSS HIGHLIGHTS
Since last year, HSS has experienced exciting changes that impacts the future of our School. Space in the Bell South building has been renovated to be used for our social science research and research training, our social media efforts have grown to help create and maintain a School-wide image and familiarity, and our office staff has seen some changes with a new dean and senior development officer in place.

Center for Social Science Research
Located on the second floor of the Bell South Building, the Center for Social Science Research (CSSR) is now a state-of-the-art space designed to facilitate collaborative research and research training among departments in the social sciences. This area amounts to nearly 7,000 square feet of new research space and benefits faculty, students, and the larger community. The renovation of the space fosters collaborative research between the many fields of social science research. Although space continues to be an issue for our ever-growing School, the CSSR has helped in providing more space for faculty and students in the social sciences.

Social Media Efforts
This past year, HSS focused on expanding its reach in the social media world by creating a Twitter page and increasing our Facebook “likes” and blog followers. These efforts have allowed us connect to our alumni, faculty, and current and prospective students, as well as create an HSS identity. Below demonstrates the demographics and locations of the Facebook users we reached between June 19 to July 16.
We are proud to announce that we currently have approximately 350 Twitter followers and 450 tweets since the launch of our page in September, 2012. We have grown our Facebook following over the past year to 433 “likes,” which helps us reach and interact with our audiences. In addition, our HSS blog has produced a large amount of activity. We frequently post about events, study abroad trips, and faculty and student research. For instance, we dedicated a full month to both the faculty and student research series that can be viewed in our brand new spring 2013 e-newsletter, 2 Green Way. Below is a list of our top blog stories as of July 18, 2013:

HSS Office

We are pleased to announce that our office has experienced some exciting changes and new faces. As of April, 2013, Peggy Cieslikowski joined the HSS and development staff as our Senior Development Officer. This position has been vacant since 2010, so we are thrilled to have Peggy reaching out to our donors and alumni. Another new addition is Dr. Jerold Hale, Dean of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences. Dr. Hale comes to us from the University of Michigan-Dearborn where he was dean of the College of Arts, Science and Letters for the past two years.

INSTITUTIONAL COSTS

HSS departments are operating below or at the cost per FTE students of their Delaware Peers, and continue to be one of the most productive departments on campus. In addition, enrollments continue to grow within our School. However, some concerns have been noted below.

Communication

“According to the Delaware data provided, the Department of Communication at the College of Charleston’s instructional costs are consistent with our peer institutions at $163.00 per student credit hour (peers = $161.00). The 2010 data suggested we were considerably cheaper than our peers at $157.00 compared to $190.00.” With that being noted, ‘there are several significant challenges facing the department in 2012-2013. Primarily, these challenges center on issues of retention, limited resources and infrastructure, lack physical space, and clarity regarding institutional priorities.”

Psychology

“Our number of roster faculty has decreased from (23 to 22 TTF) and our level of administrative staff was reduced from 2 staff positions (1 full-time, 1 part-time) to 1 position only since 2007. Related to this point, the percentage of credit hours taught by non-roster faculty (i.e., adjuncts) has risen from 23.2% as recently as 2010-11, to 32% in 2012-13. When instructional cost are measured per SCH for majors across campus, Psychology (at $137 from the FY10-11 Delaware Study) is among the third lowest (i.e., most cost effective) major program on campus. Given that faculty salaries essentially drive this metric, this suggest that Psychology faculty are paid less relative to 31 of 34 (or 91%) of the major departments on campus.

Taken together, these data represent some trends that constitute a weakness of this department and perhaps our institution. Despite offering a high-quality education, this department has an insufficient number of roster faculty and administrative staff, is over-relying on adjunct faculty and paying faculty in psychology poorly relative to other major programs on campus.”

Religious Studies
As mentioned in other departmental annual reports, funding for faculty (such as faculty salaries, lines for growing majors, more funds for R&D travel) continues to be an issue. For instance, the chair of the religious studies department states:

“With the cuts in our operating budget we find it increasingly difficult to invite visiting speakers to campus, especially with the rising cost of accommodation and travel to Charleston.” ...“Moreover, higher and more equitable salaries that approach market standards and funds to support significant merit raises are needed to encourage and reward excellence in RELS faculty.”

“We also need more money in our operating and R&D account to support our research and teaching mission. Funds available in departmental R&D accounts have not kept pace with the increasing cost of professional travel. Currently we have just over $4,000 in our R&D accounts to support the research and travel of eight roster faculty and our visitor, which means that we must take money from our operating budget to supplement the paltry $500 available in R&D for each faculty member”.

Sociology and Anthropology

“According to the FY2010 cost study, sociology costs $146 per student credit hour to operate and anthropology costs $134 per student credit hour to operate. According to the Delaware Study data, Sociology and Anthropology combined at the College of Charleston costs $155 per student credit hour, which is 3 percent less than the per student credit hour costs of our Sociology and Anthropology peers in the Delaware study. Similarly, Sociology and Anthropology combined costs $4,649 per full-time enrolled student compared to $4,717 among our Delaware Study peers, a 1.5 percent difference.

Of the 8 Departments in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences at the College of Charleston, Sociology and Anthropology ranks 6th in cost (behind psychology and history) per student credit hour and cost per FTE student. In fact, when compared to programs college-wide only 5 of the 32 programs (excluding “interdisciplinary) cost less than sociology and anthropology.”

RESEARCH AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

A full list of publications has been attached to this report.

All departments, as well as the Dean’s office, support travel to professional conferences and workshops throughout the year. However, as noted earlier, many departments have expressed their concern with lack of funds as this limits such an important area.
Communication
Departmental faculty published one book, six new articles in peer reviewed journals, thirteen additional book chapters, invited publications or reviews and made over twenty-five presentations at professional conferences. Additionally, several faculty serve as reviewers for peer reviewed journal publications and conferences and are active in the discipline (see FAS report for summary data).

Faculty received $14,500 in grant funding from the College, $184,000 (principal investigator at another institution), $1,500 from professional divisions, and a $1,006,500 NSF Grant (for the new center for social science research). Faculty participated in over fifty student-faculty research collaborations.

English
Faculty members in English published five books, ten peer-reviewed journal articles, and five peer-reviewed book chapters this year; additionally, our creative writers published poetry and short fiction in nine different literary journals. More important than the numbers is the fact that many of our faculty members are highly respected in their areas of expertise; they are frequently asked to speak at conferences, give public lectures, review book manuscripts, serve on editorial boards, and so on. Prof. Julia Eichelberger’s edition of Eudora Welty’s letters from the 1940s has earned praise from the New York Times Book Review. Crazyhorse, the literary journal published by the department, attracts submissions from renowned poets and fiction writers and makes our program immediately recognizable to creative writing faculty at other schools. Postmedieval, an academic journal co-edited by Prof. Myra Seaman, won national awards in its first two years of publication. Poe Studies, co-edited by Prof. Scott Peeples, raised its profile this year by partnering with a new publisher, Johns Hopkins University Press. Our research/publishing strengths include all traditional areas of Anglophone literary study, creative writing, composition and rhetoric, cultural studies, and film studies.

History
The department has been consistently productive in research with numerous publications in peer-reviewed journals and presentations, some of which were done with undergraduate students. Faculty was also very successful in attracting grants. For example, Rich Bodek was awarded a Fulbright Fellowship to participate in the German Studies Seminar.

Philosophy
Philosophy faculty produce a steady stream of quality research. This year, they published two scholarly books plus a novel with philosophical themes, published five peer-refereed articles, published 6 other articles, and presented their work 17 times.

In addition, three faculty were supported by major grants this year. Larry Krasnoff is in the final year of a NEH “Enduring Questions” grant ($25,000, “The Rule of Law”). Christian Coseru received a NEH grant to host a summer institute ($159,000, “Investigating Consciousness: Buddhist and Contemporary Philosophical Perspectives”). Thomas Nadelhoffer, who is currently completing work on a “Big Questions in Free Will” grant, received a second from the Templeton Foundation to study humility ($245,000, “Humility, Conviction, and Disagreement in Morality”). Professor Nadelhoffer will co-direct this project with Jen Wright from the Psychology Department.

To put our productivity in perspective, it is worth noting that even departments with 2-2 teaching loads often regard 1 peer-refereed journal article/yr. as good productivity. Thus, producing 11 articles (averaging one per faculty) plus three books is excellent productivity.

Political Science
Faculty in the Department of Political Science publish in a wide-range of scholarly outlets. In addition, faculty demonstrate the ability to write for a wider-audience by publishing policy reports, textbooks, and op-ed pieces. The department had four books published, 10 peer-reviewed journal articles published, and 36 other publications and recognitions. In addition, the department brought in approximately $198,604.00 worth of grants. Here are some highlighted grants received:

- Delfeld, Helen $ 32,790 AsiaNetwork Grant Research and Faculty Development Award.
- France, Hollis, $3,216 Research and Faculty Development Award to conduct biodiversity research in Guyana: “Sustainable Livelihoods: Cassava Income Generating Enterprises.”
- Stewart, Kendra, a number of community grants through her work as Director of the Riley Center.
- Watson, Annette. $106,000, multi-year federal grant administered by the South Carolina Sea Grant Consortium.
Psychology
The Psychology Department faculty members were extremely productive. Faculty members authored or coauthored 44 published (or accepted) manuscripts in peer-reviewed journals, and 48 conference presentations with most of these manuscripts and presentations involving College of Charleston students as co-authors. Additionally, Psychology Department faculty members were involved in grants that totaled $430,423 dollars in external awards and $29,814 in internal awards (e.g., URCA) during 2012. Our faculty members serve as reviewers for over 40 peer-reviewed journal publications, and serve actively on numerous professional organizations that promote knowledge in their disciplines (e.g., organizing and programming conferences, and reviewing submission for professional meetings). Please see the sections below for a listing of faculty accomplishments.

Religious Studies
In summary, RELS faculty published two edited books: Irwin, Esotericism, Religion and Politics and Cormack, Muslims and Others in Sacred Space (Oxford University Press). What is notable about both volumes is that they originated in conferences convened at the College of Charleston. Irwin organized an international conference for the Association for the Study of Esotericism at the College of Charleston in May 2008, while Cormack’s conference on “Muslims and Others in Sacred Space” was held in March 2007, sponsored in part by the Department of Religious Studies. Faculty wrote eight peer reviewed articles, plus seven other scholarly articles or book chapters, four encyclopedia entries, and five book reviews. They wrote seven peer reviews of works, including four book length manuscripts and a thesis; they gave sixteen invited lectures at professional conferences, participated on nine different scholarly panels, and attended four professional meetings. Overall, faculty members are productive researchers, generating impressive numbers of high quality, peer-reviewed publications when taken in the context of our teaching load and our commitment to teaching excellence in the liberal arts tradition.

Sociology and Anthropology
Departmental faculty had the following research and professional accomplishments in 2012-13:

- 4 faculty members published 6 anthologies/textbooks
- 6 faculty members published 11 peer-reviewed academic journal articles
- 7 faculty members published 7 book chapters (some of which are refereed), book reviews and other non-refereed publications.
- 14 faculty members delivered 26 presentations at professional academic meetings
- 5 Anthropology students delivered presentations at a regional academic conference
SERVICE AND OUTREACH

A full list of service activities has been attached to this report.

Our faculty and staff frequently organize and contribute to public lectures and events that benefit the College and the Charleston community. One highlighted project is the embarking of the sustainable garden out at the historic Dixie Plantation. The garden is a Master's Candidate project through the Masters of Environmental Studies Graduate Program, supported in part by the Office of Sustainability and the ECOllective Fund.

Other noteworthy examples include:

- Lecture Series: The religious studies department hosts a series of lectures and colloquia each year. For instance, on March 9, 2013 Richard Dawkins, world-famous evolutionary biologist and atheist, spoke to Herb Silverman, president emeritus of Secular Coalition for America, in A Conversation with Richard Dawkins. The event was co-sponsored by the department of Religious Studies and moderated by Dr. John Huddlestun. There were not enough seats available in Physician’s Auditorium for this event, so overflow seating was arranged on campus. Before the main event Dawkins interviewed Huddlestun as a Biblical scholar with expertise on a range of topics, mostly focusing on the historicity of events and individuals featured in the Bible. Both conversations with Dawkins were recorded and are now available to watch on YouTube.

- Bully Pulpit: The Bully Pulpit series kicked into full gear in Fall 2012 with visits from Charlie Hale, Chad Conelly and Presidential Candidate, Judge Jim Gray. We also hosted a Rock the Vote event in late October and all of the First Congressional district candidates in March.

- Alumni Outreach (SOCY/ANTH): The Department of Sociology and Anthropology made a concerted effort to expand outreach and engagement with Alumni. Through these efforts, the department organized Alumni Panels on post-graduation career paths; created their first Alumni newsletters highlighting Alumni, Faculty and Current Student work; sponsored a film screening led by one of our Sociology Alumni; and organized happy hour events in Charleston and Chicago.

- First Year Service Award, 2012-2013, College of Charleston, awarded to Tammy Ingram (HIST)

- “Brain Awareness Week” promotion: The College of Charleston’s Neuroscience Seniors partner with the Children’s Museum of the Lowcountry (CML) every year to promote neuroscience during International Brain Awareness Week. The event is sponsored by the College of Charleston’s HHMI grant.

- PRSSA: Public Relations Student Society of America meets regularly with local PR agencies and executives. In 2012, students in PRSSA partnered with Up and Up an elementary school mentoring program in addition to their usual site visits to agencies and organizations here in Charleston including MUSC and Boeing.

- Philosophy Lecture Series: Organized in collaboration with Coastal Conservation League, the philosophy department has a lecture once per semester. For instance, a lecture titled Moral “Pluralism” took place on April 11th and showcased Michael Gill, an associate professor from the University of Arizona.

- Alumni Outreach (COMM): Three receptions were hosted this year. The first reception was here in Charleston and focused on bringing back our local alums (for the first time ever!). Over 35 local alumni gathered with faculty and Advisory Council members at Towell Library for this event. Our next two receptions were held in the spring in New York and Washington DC where a significant portion of our alumni reside. We invited members of our Advisory Council to these events as well to network and talk with our recent graduates and current students.

- Poetry Out Loud: ENGL continues to enjoy hosting the Poetry Out Loud high school recitation competition.

- Joseph P. Riley Center for Livable Communities: Directed by Kendra Stewart, a faculty member in the political science department, this program focuses on sustaining the legacy of Mayor Riley through projects that develop and maintain livable communities in urban, suburban, and rural contexts. The Center carries out its mission by connecting community needs with faculty and student research interests, facilitating and administering grants, and providing expertise and assistance to public and nonprofit organizations.

- International James Joyce Conference was hosted at the College of Charleston in June, 2013, by Joe Kelly.

- William V. Moore Student Research Conference: The conference, hosted by the political science department, is an opportunity for advanced high school and undergraduate students to present research on a variety of topics, including Southern and South Carolina politics, civil rights, political extremism, educational opportunity and economic development, political communication, human geographies and world politics. The conference is held in honor of William V. Moore, Phd., and reflects Professor Moore’s passionate commitment to undergraduate education and improving political discourse and educational and economic opportunities for all South Carolinians.

- Urban Studies: Dr. Stiefel is extensively involved in service both to the Urban Studies program via his advisory role for the undergraduate Urban Studies Club and advisory role for majors, as well as to other programs via his extensive supervision of master’s theses in Historic Preservation and involvement with the Sustainability Committee and Faculty Senate.

- Environmental Studies: Tim Callahan (program director) served on the Dixie Plantation planning committee that included multiple representatives of faculty, staff, and administration across campus as the remote campus in Hollywood, SC is developed for expanded use by the College of Charleston students and faculty.

- bell hooks Presentation: Women's and gender studies' largest public event for the academic year was the presentation by bell hooks, cosponsored with a number of programs on campus and off. This lively presentation was presented to a standing-room only crowd of approximately 800 faculty, staff, students, and community members.

- Archaeology: During the 2013 Summer Archaeological Field School, African American senior citizens of the Germantown community near Hampton Plantation State Historic Site toured the slave residence excavations during our field school. At Colonial Dorchester we were constantly observed by visitors to the park, and a number of dignitaries and interested parties visited the Lord Ashley site in private property, including employees of Mead-Westvaco, the major funding agency for this project.

- Best Buddies: As a way of introducing students to the professional and social benefits of applied behavior analysis, the psychology department is involved in Best Buddies. This program is an international, non-profit organization aimed at enhancing the lives of people with intellectual disabilities through one-to-one friendships and integrated employment. The College of Charleston chapter was started in the fall of 2006, and as a college chapter, it is focused on creating special friendships between college students and members of the Charleston community who have intellectual disabilities.

- The Community Assistant Program (CAP): This program is the current design of the community outreach effort offered by the College of Charleston’s Master of Public Administration (MPA) Program. The MPA Program has been dedicated to creating an environment that nurtures community service for nearly three decades.
ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTION CONTRIBUTIONS
HONORS PROGRAM

HSS faculty play a large role in the Honors program at the College of Charleston making up about 52% of the faculty teaching in the honors program during the 2012-13 academic year. Trisha Folds-Bennett, a faculty member within the Department of Psychology, was recently appointed Dean of the Honors College. In addition, Honors College faculty members were representatives from all eight HSS academic departments, some of which collaborated with other faculty in other schools and departments.

FIRST YEAR EXPERIENCE
A total of 538 First-Year Experience Seminar (FYSM) seats and 799 Learning Community (LC) seats were offered in the 2012-13 academic year. This totaled 44% of the FYE offerings (44% of the FYSM and 45% of the LCs). As noted in the list below, HSS faculty play a large role in new student programs.

INTERDISCIPLINARY COURSES/COURSES IN OTHER SCHOOLS

In supporting the College’s goal of enhancing both undergraduate and graduate programs, the School of Humanities and Social Sciences participates in a wide range of interdisciplinary programs at the College. Below is a list of interdisciplinary programs in which our faculty play a role.

Undergraduate Minors

- African Studies (directed by Simon Lewis, ENGL): Most often hailing from the disciplines of anthropology, English, French, history, political science and religious studies, the widely varied interests of African Studies minors generate cross-disciplinary and trans-cultural dialogues that provide useful preparation for any work in which solid and creative research and communication skills are essential.

- African American Studies (directed by Conseula Francis, ENGL): As an interdisciplinary minor focused on the study of the African American experience, African American Studies aims to provide students an understanding of the history and culture of African Americans and to introduce students to the diversity of African American experience in a variety of disciplines.

- Archaeology: The minor program recognizes the completion of a course of study designed to highlight the interdisciplinary nature of a field that routinely integrates elements of the social sciences, humanities, arts, and natural sciences.

- British Studies (directed by Tim Carens, ENGL): Students electing to minor in British Studies take 6 credit hours in the history, politics, economics, and/or sociology/anthropology of the British Isles; 6 credit hours in literature, art, architecture, drama, and/or music of the British Isles; 3 credits in a course pertaining to the British Empire; and 3 credits of an integrative capstone.

- Crime, Law, and Society (directed by Ann Stein, SOCY/ANTH): This interdisciplinary minor allows students to take courses in political science, sociology, psychology, philosophy and history as well as interdisciplinary courses on the topic.

- Environmental Studies: The environmental studies minor is offered for students who have an interest in learning more about the natural environment and the ecology of the planet, as well as understanding the relationship of political, social, cultural, and economic activities to that environment.

- European Studies (directed by Bill Olejniczak, HIST): The European Studies Minor is an interdisciplinary program that introduces students to the diverse cultures and nations of Europe through the study of history, literature, languages, visual arts, economics, business, politics, religion and society.

- Neuroscience: The Minor reflects the interdisciplinary nature of neuroscience as the curriculum includes courses from Biology and Psychology as well as Physics, Computer Science, Chemistry, Discovery Informatics, Physiology, and Anthropology.

Graduate Programs

- Child Life (new!)
- Environmental Studies
- Environmental Studies/Public Administration (dual program)
- Historic Preservation
- Arts Management (graduate certificate)
INTERNATIONAL/GLOBAL INITIATIVES
Study Abroad
HSS faculty and students have been busy traveling to different areas in the world. During the 2012-13 academic year, HSS offered nine study abroad programs in 12 countries! Programs offered include:

- Czech Republic and Poland
  Faculty Directors: Dr. Robert Westerfelhaus, Department of Communication and Dr. Elena Strauman, Department of Communication
  Courses Offered: Communication (COMM 315: Ethical Communication and COMM XXX: Rhetoric that Bind and Divide)
  Description: The theme for this study abroad program is "Community and Conflict in Multicultural Contexts - Communication that Binds and Divides." The theme will explore, through the two classes offered, communication ethics and rhetoric which will examine a range of multicultural issues with a focus on communication that contributed to the Holocaust.

- China Business and Political Science
  Faculty Directors: Dr. Yu Henry Xie, School of Business and Dr. Guoli Liu, Department of Political Science
  Courses Offered: Political Science/Asian Studies and International Business (POLI 359/ASST340: China and the US and INTB 360: Doing Business in China)
  Description: This program is a multidisciplinary introduction to China in comparison to the United States. This program will examine the most significant cultural, political, and business environments, such as market transition, in contemporary China.

- Spoleto, Italy
  Faculty Directors: Dr. Bret Lott, Department of English and Dr. Anthony Varallo, Department of English
  Courses Offered: Creative Writing and Literature (ENGL 339: The Travel Memoir: Writing In and Of Place and ENGL 395: The Italian Image in Nineteenth-Century American Literature)
  Description: Students will visit Charleston's sister city to write and to study literature, as well as to meet with artists and writers living there, inspiring them to continue their education with an even greater sense of the importance of art, and of writing. Students and faculty will be stay at a villa compound located just outside of Spoleto, where they will share meals, hold readings, and spend quiet time writing and reading.

FACULTY DIVERSITY
RECRUITMENT EFFORTS
The School had a number of roster hires during the 2012-2013 academic year, which totaled eight successful searches in the departments of English, political sciences, psychology, history, and philosophy. Sixty-three percent of the new hires within HSS are diverse. Most importantly, the two chair searches that took place this past year were successful in increasing the number of female faculty at a higher-end position in our School. Phyllis Jestice (Chair of the Department of History) and Gabrielle Principe (Chair of the Department of Psychology) have joined our School’s list of faculty members. In addition, LaTasha Chaffin was hired in the political science department and increased the number of female, African American faculty. Lastly, philosophy hired Rachel McKinnon and English hired Colleen Glenn as new additions to their departments.

ASSESSMENT ACTIVITIES
The full HSS assessment report has been attached (Individual departmental assessment reports are included to Departmental annual reports)

The School of Humanities and Social Sciences assed four goals:

1. To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning.
2. To develop global awareness
3. To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline
4. To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research

Goal 1: In Fall 2012 880 (Spring 2013 data was not available at time of report) of the 2549 HSS majors (34.5%) were enrolled in either a small capstone course or an Independent Enrollment ie. Internship, Academic Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay thus providing majors with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning. This is down from the base line data from Fall 2010 through Spring 2012 of 42% (1005) of the 2400 HSS. However, these types of enrollments tend to be higher in the Spring semester and given the spring data were not available there may not actually be a decrease from the previous years.

While our assessment measures focused on HSS majors, other indicators of highly personalized educational experiences are demonstrated in the HSS contribution to the First Year Experience Program and the Honors College. While having 30% of the faculty, HSS contributes approximately 50% of the seats offered in the Honors College courses, and approximately 45% of the FYE seats.
Goal 2: Study abroad numbers were not available at time of report. Given data from previous years, it is our expectation that approximately 10% of HSS majors studied abroad. We would like to see these numbers increase and are in the process of developing a new semester long program focused on the Arts and Humanities.

Goal 3: In general, any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing above average when tested on key concepts in the discipline. These findings are summarized below by program in the full assessment report.

Goal 4: 44% of HSS majors (up from the Fall 2010-Spring 2012 baseline of 41.6%) during the last academic were trained in the methods of scholarly inquiry and research appropriate to their discipline. These HSS majors were enrolled in methods courses, student research apprenticeships, or bachelor’s essays. Given all of these courses are required of the individual majors, it is safe to say that 100% of HSS majors upon graduation have had research training.

Major strengths in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences are in providing students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning, helping students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, and training students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research. We would like to increase these offerings.

Personalized learning opportunities and methods training are costly. In any given semester only 1 out of 3 HSS majors have the opportunity to work one-on-one with faculty, participate in an experiential internship experience, or a small capstone course. Increasing these opportunities requires additional faculty lines and incentives for current faculty to engage in these experiences above and beyond their standard workload. Research methods training is not only limited by faculty availability but, also by access to state of the art lab and computer facilities. Current physical resources are inadequate to provide our students with methods training to enter the workforce or continue their education in graduate school.

STUDENT ACCOMPLISHMENTS

UNDERGRADUATE AND GRADUATE ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Additional distinguished scholarships are included in the “Awards and Distinctions” section of this report.

HSS Scholars

Each spring, the School of Humanities and Social Sciences honors graduating seniors who have distinguished themselves by amassing an impressive body of work during their undergraduate careers. The two top students in each of the majors taught within HSS are recognized for their academic achievements as HSS Scholars. A formal ceremony and poster session marks the occasion. Here is our most recent list of award winners.

- Anthropology
  - Heather Habecker and Catherine Marshall

Bishop Robert Smith Award
The Bishop Robert Smith Award is the highest honor a student can receive during their academic career at the College of Charleston. Each year, faculty and staff nominate students who they feel have demonstrated a high level of leadership and academic excellence. We are proud to announce that this year had three award winners, two of which are HSS majors! The 2013 Bishop Robert Smith Award winners from HSS are Liza Wood (click here), a political science major, and Katherine Shidler (click here), a communication major!

SURF Grants
A total of 10 HSS students were awarded SURF grants this past year.

Masters of Environmental Studies (MES)
Twenty-four MES students received travel funding awards this year, both from the MES Program and from Graduate Research and Presentation Grants provided by the Graduate School Office, to attend conferences and to make research trips. Thirteen MES students had their work featured at the College of Charleston’s Graduate Research Poster Session, where student Jen Jones was named a top presenter. Two students received Graduate Assistantships for Student Research, and four students and their advisors received research and travel funding, based on the exceptional merit of their research proposals as reviewed by experts in the field.

Masters of History
During the self-evaluation period, 10 students enrolled in the MA program in history have been successful in obtaining fellowships to support their graduate studies. In the past three years, three in-state students, Samuel Gervais, Laura May, Jessica Stollenmaier, and Jailynne Wood, earned the highly competitive South Carolina Scholar Award, which carries a stipend of $5000, a reflection of their academic distinction. Andrew Cuadrado, Kelly Gerhold, Elizabeth Wilkins, Margaret Edling, Morgan Keller, and Frank McHone earned Graduate Scholar Awards. The GSA, intended to attract highly qualified applicants from outside our state, carry a $1000 stipend and eligibility for in-state tuition.

Several history graduate students pursued internships that involved applied research during the self-study period, including Shauna Winkler, who worked with the Citadel’s Oral History Project, Krystle Kline, Kate Fowler, Julie Chen, Frank Puricelli, and Victoria Musheff, who all worked at the Charleston Museum, Joi Mayo and Shelia Harrell-Roye, who worked at the Avery Research Center, and Kate Fowler and Megan Valentine, who worked at the National Park Service, Fort Sumter.

Masters of Public Administration (MPA)
Pi Alpha Alpha Public Administration Honor Society: In May 2013, 23 students were inducted. Pi Alpha Alpha requirements are rigorous and they honor the highest academic achievement (3.7 GPA or above) and significant public service.

One of our current students, Kristen Young, took a month-long research trip to Morocco, funded in part by a prestigious Rotary International competitive grant award. Kristen is studying the development of NGOs, including one organization she helped create.
Two of our spring 2013 graduates, Lauren Clarkin and Martin Erbele, were selected from among all MPA applicants from the College of Charleston, the University of South Carolina, and Clemson University, for the South Carolina City and County Management Association’s Max Holland and Mitch Sizemore Scholarships. These awards recognize two students annually who are actively enrolled in the MPA programs in the state and who are interested in a career in local government.

This past year our first students graduated from the dual MPA-Master of Environmental Studies program. As Liz Symon, our very first dual program graduate noted, “I feel like I can apply to a wider array of jobs. I have the ability to go into an environmental organization and take a more executive management position because of [the science-management-policy focus of] the dual program.

Barbara Kolar ’13 and Matthew Lewellyn ’13 attended the Southeastern Conference for Public Administration (SECOPA) in September 2012 and presented original research. Barbara’s paper was entitled “Managing Competition: Nonprofit duplication in Charleston SC.” Matt presented research co-authored with MPA director Jo Ann Ewalt, entitled “State Support for Same-sex Marriage: Accounting for Policy Development in Some Unlikely Places.”

AWARDS AND DISTINCTIONS
The School of Humanities and Social Sciences continues to receive various awards and distinctions throughout the year. Below is a list of examples by department, which can also be viewed in the FAS data and the individual department/program annual reports.

Philosophy

- Four faculty (Jennifer Baker, Christian Coseru, Jonathan Neufeld, and Richard Nunan) serve as officers in national professional organizations.
- The Templeton Foundation awarded $240,000 for a project titled “Humility, Conviction, and Disagreement in Morality: An Interdisciplinary Investigation”. The co-principal investigators are Thomas Nadelhoffer (Department of Philosophy) and Jen Wright (Department of Psychology) with help from team members from the University of Winnipeg, Duke University School of Medicine, and Duke University. Trisha Folds-Bennet from CofC’s Honors College will also be contributing as a team member. More information here: http://blogs.cofc.edu/hss/2013/04/03/it-pays-when-hss-faculty-work-together/

Political Science

- Kendra Stewart: As a tribute to her disciplinary service, she was recently honored with the Pugliese Award from the Southeastern Association of Public Administration.
- Guoli Liu: Serves as a board member of the Chinese Association in Greater Charleston and on the editorial board for the Journal of Chinese Political Science.
- Jordan Ragusa: His innovative “Rule 22” blog has been featured in a range of national outlets including The Washington Post and The Monkey Cage.
- Paul Bradley will be attending Georgia Southern pursuing a Master’s Degree in Counselor Education with a concentration in Students Services beginning the Fall 2013. Paul also won an Excel award for Diversity Service and was named ROAR Scholar of the year for 2013.
- Elizabeth (Libby) Conwell established the Pulsera Project as an official student organization on campus and served as president for three semesters. As a sophomore, she was recognized with the Pi Sigma Alpha Best Paper Award for the analytical essay category and as a junior, she was awarded the Harper B. Keeler Award for outstanding rising senior in political science. She has applied for a Rotary Foundation Global Grant to study community development through the context of food production and consumption.
- Chelsea Montgomery will spend the next year completing her pre-medicine course requirements and studying for the MCAT. She plans to combine her interest in global studies with medicine by eventually working with refugees and displaced persons. While at the College, Chelsea studied abroad twice in Germany (once on a William Aiken Fellows Society Summer Enrichment Grant) and spent a summer in Peru teaching English. She was also awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to study in Germany.
- Beverley (Liza) Wood will attend the University of Maastricht in the Netherlands on a Fulbright grant to study sustainability science and policy. While at the College, she interned at the South Carolina Sea Grant Consortium and Lowcountry Local First and served as an Honors Peer Facilitator. Through undergraduate research in both political science and biology, Liza studied the impacts of water contamination on frog life cycles and alternative agriculture movements in Thailand. She presented her work at both national and international conferences, and currently has a manuscript in the final stages of review. Liza was recently awarded the College’s Bishop Robert Smith award.

Psychology
The Templeton Foundation awarded $240,000 for a project titled “Humility, Conviction, and Disagreement in Morality: An Interdisciplinary Investigation”. The co-principal investigators are Thomas Nadelhoffer (Department of Philosophy) and Jen Wright (Department of Psychology) with help from team members from the University of Winnipeg, Duke University School of Medicine, and Duke University. - Outstanding Student in Psychology: Morgan Zipperly
- Psychology Departmental Student Honors: Stephen Bradley King, Liana J. McNallan
- HSS Scholar Recipient for Psychology: Morgan Zipperly
- William Bischoff memorial Scholarship Recipients: Lauren Deasy, Ann Galizio, Virginia Wilson

Religious Studies

- Our graduating class in 2013 was one of our smallest in terms of numbers, with only eleven students earning their BA degree, but it was an exceptionally strong graduating class.
- Our “Outstanding Student Award” went to four students (the largest number ever awarded): Paige Anderson, Hannah Booth, Rachel Davis and Hannah Wathen.
- Rachel Davis was the most decorated student in this year’s graduating class. She had a perfect 4.0 GPA in her RELS classes, while completing the requirements for the Honors College. Rachel served as peer facilitator in Siegler’s FYSM on Evangelicals in America, she published an essay on the alleged “War on Christmas” in Chrestomathy, and she received a SURF grant for her research on farming and faith in the South Carolina upstate region.
- Hannah Wathen earned a RELS GPA of 3.569 with two minors in Music and Women & Gender Studies. Hannah also completed an internship at the Sophia Institute, a center of learning in Charleston that cultivates wisdom and the conscious feminine and masculine.
- Tyler Ray was a Ronald McNair Fellow who participated actively in a number of extra-curricular activities: he organized the “Meditation Club,” taught about religions and social justice for the Unitarian Universalist High School Group, and he traveled to China with Siegler in summer 2011, returning again in 2012 to study Chinese through Columbia University’s intensive Mandarin language program. He also completed a McNair Summer research project and a tutorial with Bjerken on the role of conceptual metaphors in the Daoist philosophy of Zhuangzi, which was accepted for publication in Chrestomathy.

Sociology and Anthropology

- The following students were inducted into the Alpha Kappa Delta Sociology Honor Society: Joshua Burrill Lindsay Flight Samantha Hynd Kyle Jackson Claire Pariano Rebecca Warthen Courtney Williams Anna Wright
- The following students were inducted into the Lambda Alpha Anthropology Honor Society:
Department Honors
Sociology: Mary Hood Paulson and Zachary Huey
Anthropology: Lauren Bader

Transfer Student Academic Achievement Award: Heather Habecker

This year the Anthropology Program awarded financial awards to Anthropology majors who conducted field research during the summer of 2013. The recipients and the amount of those awards are listed below. Catherine Wood Parker Memorial Award

Sarah Elgradawy ($750): Sarah will be attending the PIARA (Proyecto de Investigación Arqueológico Regional Ancash) Archaeological Field School at Hualcayan in Peru.

Caitlin Stone ($750): Caitlin will be attending the Field School Pozzeveri in Medieval Archaeology and Bioarchaeology in Italy. She will be traveling to the Italian community of Altopascio in the Province of Lucca in the Tuscany region, with the excavation taking place at the Badia Pozzeveri (a church for St. Peter that was founded in the 11th century).

Jon Morter Memorial Award: Steven Paschal ($725): Steven will be attending the Southeastern Archaeological Field School in Charleston which is a joint collaboration between our Department and the Charleston Museum.

Anthropology Fieldwork Award

Allison Hemhauser ($700): Allison will be attending the NCSU ethnographic field school in Thailand.

Autumn Baker ($700): Autumn will be attending an archaeological field school in Bradesti, Central Transylvania, Romania. The program is a funerary excavation program studying the village’s medieval church and adjacent cemetery.

Craig Garrison ($225): Craig will be completing an independent study focused on the history, function and preservation of Charleston’s carriage stones.

Program/Department Mission Statement

Unit or School Mission
In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, we are teacher-scholars committed to the study of human nature and human creations. We seek to deepen our understanding of history and literature, inquire into the character of cultures and societies and, lastly, support the value of ethical and moral reflection.

Our HSS teacher-scholars cultivate in students the skills of creative problem-solving, critical thinking, and writing to discover. We also engage these students in activities that prepare them for productive civic engagement, understanding of different global perspectives and learning as a lifelong pursuit.
1: Personalized Education

Program Goal or SLO
To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning.

Assessment Method / Performance Expected
An annual tally will be taken of all HSS majors who have completed an independent enrollment. Using 2 years of data, we will establish a baseline from which to track improvements.

Assessment Results
In Fall 2012 through Spring 2013, 880 of 2,549 majors (34.5%) were enrolled in either a small capstone course or an individual enrollment (internship, academic apprenticeship, tutorial, independent study, fieldwork, or bachelor's essay). These small courses and independent enrollments provide students with a highly personalized education.

Use of Results
With two years of data, we will establish a baseline from which to track improvements.

Budget Changes
None

Comments and Attachments
Number of majors is based on Institutional Research numbers for Fall 2012; information is not available yet for Spring 2013, so the percentage of majors involved in an Individual Enrollment may not be accurate.

Related Items
 ملي 3: Develop and support a highly qualified, diverse and stable base of faculty and staff
2: Global Awareness

Program Goal or SLO
To develop global awareness.

Assessment Method / Performance Expected
An annual tally will be taken of all HSS majors who have studied abroad. Using 2 years of data, we will establish a baseline from which to track improvements.

Assessment Results
We are awaiting data on the percentage of HSS majors who studied abroad from the Center for International Education. This is only one measure of developing global awareness. Additional measures need to address specific course content which is only reasonably accomplished at the program level.

Use of Results
The HSS Dean and Associate Dean will review the findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2013. Appropriate changes will be suggested next year.

Budget Changes
None

Comments and Attachments

Related Items

1: Enhance the undergraduate academic core.
3: Knowledge and Competence

Program Goal or SLO
To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline,

Assessment Method / Performance Expected
HSS will look at aggregate data from individual program assessments in the school

Assessment Results
In general any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing at or above general competency when evaluated on key competencies in the discipline. For specific outcomes in which majors did not perform at competency, program faculty are discussing ways to improve performance. In sum:

1. Anthropology: Assessed one SLO, Knowledge of and Application of Key Concepts, by administering a 15-question test to ANTH 101 students at the end of the Fall 2012 semester. Expecting an average of 70% correct answers, the overall percentage was 69.23%. Of the 5 areas tested, cultural and biological evolution garnered the highest score (80%), while the area of social organization had the lowest (60.6%). Anthropology faculty will re-evaluate consistency of coverage in 101 and administer a revised tool in 2013-14; in addition, they will administer the tool in selected upper level courses to assess the knowledge and application of key concepts among students completing the major.

2. Communication: Assessed two SLO's, 1. Core Theoretical Perspectives and 2. Complex Relation Between Media and Culture. (Assessment of Third SLO, Media Literacy Skills, was canceled.) For assessment of #1, COMM 214 students in Fall 2012 answered five questions about theoretical perspectives, with percentages ranging from 44% to 88% on individual questions and an average of 69.45%; in the spring, they answered three questions, with percentages ranging from 80.5% to 89.5 %, and an average of 84%. COMM 214 faculty will review how they are teaching the course and how to improve comprehension of this SLO through new readings and assignments. For assessment of #2,
COMM 214 students answered six questions on tests and quizzes, with percentages ranging from 34%-89.35%, with an average of 64.18%. Results indicate that students understand some aspects of the complex relationship between media and culture. Faculty will review what is taught well and what needs improvement.

3. English: Assessed five SLO's: 1. Literary and Cultural History, 2. Analyzing Key Elements, 3. Analyzing within Contexts, 4. Knowledge of Approaches and Contexts Driving Interpretation, and 5. Methodological and Critical Approaches. SLO's 1-3 were assessed by administering an essay prompt at the beginning and end of the spring semester in both English 201 and 202, "beginning of the major" survey courses required of all majors. On average students showed marked improvement on the post-test. SLO's 5 and 6 were measured by a test administered in three sections of English 299, a "middle of the major" course required of all majors. Scores were 87.37, 85.25, and 87.00%. The departmental assessment committee believes SLO's 5, 6, and 7 can more accurately be assessed by evaluating students' annotated bibliographies and project proposals in English 299 next year.

4. History: Assessed 1. Primary and Secondary Sources, 2. Knowledge of Causation, and 3. Historical Context. Using a three-point rubric to assess these SLO's in 400-level seminar papers collected in Fall 2011 and Spring 2012, the department assessment committee concluded that students had acquired a basic comprehension of each outcome, with improvement in each outcome since 2006; averages, respectively, for the outcomes were 2.26, 2.36, and 2.44. The department will discuss ways to reinforce these learning outcomes in History 299 and 400.

5. Philosophy: Assessed 1. Knowledge of Key Figures and Issues, 2. Writing, and 3. Critical Reasoning. SLO #1 was measured by PHIL 201 and 202 exam grades for declared majors, with the expectation that 90% would pass and 60% would score B- or better; in fact, 96% passed (24/25 students) and 60% (15/25) scored B or better. The department will continue to monitor this outcome. Using a rubric, SLO #2 was assessed by evaluating final papers in PHIL 450, a capstone course, with the expectation that 70% would score good or better; 91% scored good or better. The same rubric will be used next year. For SLO #3, final exam scores were collected for declared majors in PHIL 120 with the expectation that 90% would pass and 60% would show good command (B or better); 89% passed (8/9 students) and 67% showed good command (6/9 students). The department will continue to monitor and explore the possibility of supplemental instruction in this course.

6. Political Science: Assessed 1. Demonstrate understanding of readings, analyze texts critically, effectively write papers, 2. Distinguish own views from those of others and defend their own perspective, 3. Apply theories and concepts to new situations, 4. Demonstrate knowledge of methods used by scholars of politics and understand which methodological approaches are appropriate where, then apply in papers, 5. Demonstrate mastery of independent research process. All outcomes were assessed by evaluating a random selection of 20% of capstone papers, with the expectation that at least 70% would score 70% or better. Results: 1. 67% scored Approaches Mastery on Clarity; 83% scored Approaches Mastery on Quality. 2. 72% scored Approaches or Demonstrates Mastery. 3. 61% scored Approaches or Demonstrates Mastery on Argument; 67% scored Approaches or Demonstrates Mastery on Clarity. 4. 22% scored Approaches or Demonstrates Substantial Mastery on Appropriate Methodology; 61% scored Approaches or Demonstrates Mastery on Use of Method. 5. 61% scored 70 or higher. Use of Results: Encourage faculty to encourage drafting, peer editing and feedback during research and writing process; encourage students to be explicit about methodological choices; begin department discussion concerning best research practices and the question of the scholarship of discovery vs. application.

7. Psychology BA: This new degree was not assessed this year, but the department has established three learning outcomes: 1. Communicate Effectively, 2. Apply Basic Research Methods, and 3. Understand and Remember Major Concepts.

Remember Major Concepts. SLO #1: Random sampling of abstracts from the second empirical report in 400-level lab courses were rated (by someone other than the instructor) according to guidelines of the APA using a 3-point rubric, with 1="approaching standards." The average score was 1.30, which was somewhat lower than 2011 results, possibly due to severity of the rubric and in absence of grading both the abstract and whole report in 2011. SLO #2: Looking specifically for students' knowledge of theory and research in the domains of research methodology and psychological statistics, revised content area multiple-choice pre- and post-tests were administered to sections of 221 (statistics), 220 (research methodology), and 250 (combined statistics/research methodology), expecting significant improvement over last year with post-test average at or above 70%, average scores for the three courses, respectively, were 64.8, 78.2, and 78.1. SLO #3: Pre- and post-tests in core area of Learning were evaluated in 213 (conditioning and learning) in Fall 2012, expecting post-test scores at or above 70%. Although the average was 62.7%, students demonstrated significant improvement from pre- to post-test. Faculty will conduct a detailed item analysis to determine methods for delivering content in PSYC 213.

9. Public Health: Assessed two of three learning outcomes: 1. Health Campaigns Project Evaluation and 2. Care Studies Health Communication Case Study. SLO #1: 15 of 21 group projects were randomly selected, with results that 15/15 demonstrated effective use of theory, 14/15 demonstrated creative implementation, and 12/15 demonstrated at least minimal knowledge or behavior change in the targeted population. SLO #2: In multiple sections of health communication, 42 of 84 case studies were randomly selected; 39/42 effectively employed theory to evaluate their case study project, and 38/42 provided insightful conclusions regarding their case studies.

10. Religious Studies: Assessed two learning outcomes, 1. Major Theoretical Perspectives and 2. Effective Writing Skills. Both outcomes were assessed using a four-point rating of benchmark, competence, high competence, or mastery. For SLO #1, a faculty committee rated 10 essay exams, each with two essay questions, from RELS 201 (Fall 2012) to assess (1) the degree to which students could explain arguments for religion as a unique phenomenon and (2) the role of power and authority in religion, with the expectation that 75% would score at or above competence. On the first essay, 100% achieved benchmark, 83% competence, 63% high competence, and 10% mastery. On Essay #2, 100% achieved benchmark, 90% competence, 53% high competence, and 0% mastery. The scoring committee was satisfied with the rubric and use it next year. For SLO #2,a faculty committee rated 10 papers (10-12 page researched arguments) on the criteria of (1) effective thesis/argument, (2) evidence and sources, and (3) contextualization of sources, with the expectation that 75% of students would demonstrate high competence. 8% scored below benchmark, 92% at benchmark, 77% at competence, 36% at high competence, and 0% at mastery. The faculty committee found the rubric problematic and will revise for next year; they will also bring in writing experts to present a workshop on crafting, supervising, and evaluating writing.

11. Sociology: Assessed three outcomes, 1. Quantitative and Qualitative Research, 2. Appropriateness of Statistical Tests, and 3. Interpreting Statistical Information. For SLO #1, one fill-in-the-blank question was administered on a Fall 2012 SOCY 271 (Intro to Social Research) exam to 28 students, with the expectation that at least 75% would answer correctly: "A detailed, in-depth, open-ended set of interviews with 30 new mothers of infants that focuses on how these women subjectively experience the transition into motherhood would best be characterized as ____________ research. Select the word from the word bank that best completes this statement." 89.2% (25/28) answered the question correctly as "qualitative." Faculty will continue to share pedagogical approaches to assist students in achieving this and other outcomes. For SLO #2, 20 students in SOCY 272 (Making Sense of Sociological Data) were asked to answer the following question on OAKS in Fall 2012, with the expectation that 70% should answer correctly:

Multiple Choice Item: A researcher investigates whether middle class adults are more likely to receive flu shots than poor adults. The researcher will use a:

a. Non-directional test
b. Two-tailed test
c. One-tailed test
d. A and B
e. A and C.

Although only 67% answered correctly, the faculty were satisfied with the assessment instrument, noting that student effort is key in achieving the outcome and agreeing to share pedagogical approaches to reinforce student comprehension of this and other outcomes. For SLO #3, the following question was administered to the same 20 SOCY 272 students on OAKS, with the expectation that 70% would answer correctly:

A sociology department claims it takes 7 years or less to get a PhD. You take a simple random sample of former students with PhDs and find that it takes an average of 8 years to get a Ph.D., which has a z-score of 2.12 and a p-value of .017. Interpret the p-value.

f. If the true mean time to a PhD completion were 7 years then a mean of 8 or more years would occur at random 98.3% of the time
g. Just 1.7% of the time would we see, by chance alone, a mean time to completion of the PhD that is 8 years or more if the true mean were 7 years
h. If the true mean time to PhD completion were 7 years, then a mean of 8 or more years would occur at random 0.16% of the time
i. 17% of the time would we see, by chance alone, a mean time to completion of the PhD that is 8 years or more if the true mean were 7 years.

In fact, 86% correctly answered B. The faculty were pleased with this outcome.

12. Urban Studies: Assessed its third SLO, Theoretical Perspectives in the discipline. Using a rating of unsatisfactory, emerging, and mastery, 21 students in the fall section of SOCY 351 conducted and presented urban ethnographies, using social theory to analyze their data. 10/21 students achieved mastery, 10/21 emerging, and 1 unsatisfactory. Satisfied with the results of this assessment, the new director of URST will assess a different outcome next year.

13. Women's and Gender Studies: Assessed five SLOs, 1. critical thinking, 2. verbal and writing skills, 3. social advocacy, 4. real-life experiences, and 5. applying concepts to new situations. All were assessed through rating of internship portfolios, with the expectation that 80% would be at developed or substantially developed for each outcome. The results, respectively, were 71%, 86%, 43%, 79%, and 43%. Next year faculty will evaluate WGST 200 papers and capstone papers to track how and where objectives 1, 2, and 4 are being developed. The rubric will change for SLO #3, and the description of the internship will change.

Use of Results
The HSS Dean and Associate Dean have reviewed the findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2013. Changes implemented were at the program level and described in program reports.

4: Inquiry and Research
Program Goal or SLO
To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research.

Assessment Method / Performance Expected
An annual tally will be taken of all HSS majors who have completed a research methods course or a research oriented independent enrollment. Using 2 years of data, we will establish a baseline from which to track improvements.

HSS will look at aggregate data from individual program assessments in the school

Assessment Results
From Fall 2012 through Spring 2013, 1,126 of 2,549 majors (44%) were participating in a research-oriented course or individual enrollment and thus were being trained in the methods of scholarly inquiry and research appropriate to their discipline. (The data in the "by the numbers" spreadsheet under goal #1 includes a breakdown by program.) These HSS majors were enrolled in methods courses, tutorials, independent studies, student research apprenticeships, or bachelor's essays. Most of these courses are required in the major; thus it is safe to say that 100% of HSS majors upon graduating have had research training in the discipline at least once.

Use of Results
The HSS Dean and Associate Dean have reviewed these findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2013. Changes implemented were at the program level and are described in program reports.
