I. SCHOOL

MISSION STATEMENT
In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences (HSS), we are teacher-scholars committed to the study of human nature and human creations. We seek to deepen our understanding of history and literature, inquire into the character of cultures and societies, broaden our understanding of human behavior, and support the value of ethical and moral reflection.

Our HSS teacher-scholars cultivate in students skills for creative problem-solving, critical thinking, and superior written and oral communication skills. We also engage these students in activities that prepare them for productive civic engagement, global citizenship, understanding of different global perspectives and learning as a lifelong pursuit. Studies in HSS provide students with transferrable skills that serve students in a variety of careers across a lifespan.

SCHOOL GOALS AND THEIR RELATIONSHIP TO THE COLLEGE’S STRATEGIC PLAN
Given our mission statement and simply by providing instruction in the humanities and social sciences to over 15,000 students in approximately 550 sections each term we have demonstrated support of the institutional mission to:

1. Through a strong core curriculum, to develop an understanding of the arts, humanities, mathematics, the natural sciences and the social sciences.
2. Encourage students to become conscious of the importance of political, social, economic, and scientific issues of their time.

Our goals in Humanities and Social Sciences are to help assure that:

1. Graduates had highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning;
2. Graduates developed global awareness;
3. Graduates acquired depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline;
4. Graduates were trained in methods of scholarly inquiry and research
5. The School of Humanities and Social Sciences continues to excel in teaching, research and professional development opportunities.
6. Faculty in the School participate in significant faculty development opportunities
7. Learning outcomes resulting from the HSS curriculum are assessed annually

GOALS IN THE COLLEGE’S STRATEGIC PLAN OUR SCHOOL WOULD PLACE AS HIGHEST PRIORITY
The College’s strategies are all important to the success of the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, especially since our School’s programs are the core of a liberal arts and sciences education. However, some College-wide strategies and tactics are most in-line with our School-specific goals.
Enhance the undergraduate academic core.
- Provide each student a personalized experience that integrates classroom learning with at least two of the following: research and creative activities, civic engagement, study away, internships and peer education.
- Enhance undergraduate academic programs that are strongly linked to the history, traditions, culture and environment of the Charleston and the Lowcountry.
- Develop academic programs utilizing and/or based at Dixie Plantation. Embed global competencies into general education and major requirements.

- Develop nationally recognized graduate programs.
- Develop and retain a highly qualified and diverse faculty and staff.
- Recruit, enroll and retain an academically distinguished, well-prepared and diverse student body.
- Provide up-to-date facilities and infrastructure to enhance academic, co-curricular and extra-curricular programs.
- Collaborate with local, national and international institutions to leverage higher education for a stronger South Carolina
  - Develop and expand research partnerships and initiatives.
  - Expand study abroad opportunities for students.
- Pursue national recognition for the College of Charleston’s personalized liberal arts and sciences education and for the distinctive features of its undergraduate and graduate programs.

Intended Undergraduate Majors*
Fall 2013 Applications

Below is a table of intended undergraduate majors that were noted in fall 2013 College applications. It is noteworthy that while intended majors are spread across the College of Charleston a significant amount of students ultimately choose HSS majors, as noted in the “undergraduate degrees awarded” graphs earlier (32.06%).

INSTITUTIONAL COSTS

The School of Humanities and Social Sciences is the largest school at the College of Charleston. Compared to the other schools at the College, we graduate more students (633; 32.06%) and generate most credit hours (83092; 28%). Major strengths in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences are in providing students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning, helping students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, and training students in methods of scholarly inquiry and research.
Personalized learning opportunities and methods training are costly. In any given semester only 1 out of 5 HSS majors have the opportunity to work one-on-one with faculty or participate in an experiential internship experience. Increasing these opportunities requires additional faculty lines and incentives for current faculty to engage in these experiences above and beyond their standard workload. Research methods training is not only limited by faculty availability but, also by access to state of the art lab and computer facilities. Current physical resources are inadequate to provide our students with methods training to enter the workforce or continue their education in graduate school.

RESEARCH AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The Dean's office and every department within HSS support travel to professional conferences and workshops throughout the year. A full list of research and professional development activities has been attached to this report.

SERVICE AND OUTREACH

A full list of service activities has been attached to this report.

Our faculty and staff frequently organize and contribute to public lectures and events that benefit the College and the Charleston community. One highlighted project is the embarking of the sustainable garden out at the historic Dixie Plantation. The garden is a Master's Candidate project through the Masters of Environmental Studies Graduate Program, supported in part by the Office of Sustainability and the ECOllective Fund.

Other noteworthy examples include:

- Bully Pulpit: The Bully Pulpit series and The Jubilee Project collaborated on a panel discussion commemorating the 150th Anniversary of the Gettysburg Address. Panelists included Congressman James Clyburn, Dr. Vernon Burton and Dr. Brian McGee.

- Joseph P. Riley Center for Livable Communities: focuses on sustaining the legacy of Mayor Riley through projects that develop and maintain livable communities in urban, suburban, and rural contexts. The Center carries out its mission by connecting community needs with faculty and student research interests, facilitating and administering grants, and providing expertise and assistance to public and nonprofit organizations.

- A Charleston Affair: HSS colleagues, alumni and students celebrated together at A Charleston Affair.

- Cougar Trail: With the College entering a new athletics conference this year, and with the help of Vince Benigni, we promoted the Cougar Trail events in New York, Boston and Baltimore.

- The Community Assistance Program (CAP) is the seminal illustration of the MPA Program's commitment to our community and the opportunities for students, faculty and staff to contribute to the well-being of the region. Under the direction of Janet Key, CAP employs four Graduate Assistants who perform low- and no-cost professional services for local public and nonprofit agencies in the Lowcountry.

- Women’s and Gender Studies Community Engagement: 2013-14 included significant opportunities for student engagement and involved citizenship. WGST students’ activism was featured in a number of national publications including The Washington Post and The New York Times.

- STEM Education Day at the RiverDogs Stadium: In Spring 2014, Mark Hurd (PSYC) and other faculty participated in STEM Education Day at the RiverDogs stadium where local school children were exposed to a wide range of science and math disciplines. We had brain models, preserved sheep brains and preserved rodent brains for the kids to explore.

- Religious Studies: On March 25, 2014 Dr. David White gave a lecture on Yoga, Violent Death, and Transcendence in Tantric Art. This topic was of special interest to students enrolled in Dr. McDaniel’s Asian Esotericism seminar and Dr. Siegler’s Asian Religions in America course.

- Poetry Out Loud: The English department continues to enjoy hosting the Poetry Out Loud high school recitation competition.

- William V. Moore Student Research Conference: The conference, hosted by the political science department, is an opportunity for advanced high school and undergraduate students to present research on a variety of topics, including Southern and South Carolina politics, civil rights, political extremism, educational opportunity and economic development, political communication, human geographies and world politics. The conference is held in honor of William V. Moore, Phd., and reflects Professor Moore’s passionate commitment to undergraduate education and improving political discourse and educational and economic opportunities for all South Carolinians.

- Best Buddies: As a way of introducing students to the professional and social benefits of applied behavior analysis, the psychology department is involved in Best Buddies. This program is an international, non-profit organization aimed at enhancing the lives of people with intellectual disabilities through one-to-one friendships and integrated employment. The College of Charleston chapter was started in the fall of 2006, and as a college chapter, it is focused on creating special friendships between college students and members of the Charleston community who have intellectual disabilities.

- Blog Worthy: Thomas Nadelhoffer (PHIL) coordinates two influential blogs (Flickers of Freedom and Experimental Philosophy). Jordan Ragusa (POLI) continues his work with the innovative Rule 22 blog. His posts have been featured in a range of national outlets including The Washington Post and The Monkey Cage.

III. ADDITIONAL INSTRUCTIONAL CONTRIBUTIONS

HONORS PROGRAM

HSS faculty play a large role in the Honors program at the College of Charleston. Our faculty generated 65% of the total honors credit hours and 61% of the total honors enrollment during the 2013-14 academic year.

HSS CONTRIBUTIONS TO INTERDISCIPLINARY PROGRAMS AND COURSES IN OTHER SCHOOLS

In supporting the College’s goal of enhancing both undergraduate and graduate programs, the School of Humanities and Social Sciences participates in a wide range of interdisciplinary programs at the College. Below is a list of interdisciplinary programs in which our faculty play a role. A full list can be found here and here.
Undergraduate Minors

- African Studies (directed by Simon Lewis, ENGL): Most often hailing from the disciplines of anthropology, English, French, history, political science and religious studies, the widely varied interests of African Studies minors generate cross-disciplinary and trans-cultural dialogues that provide useful preparation for any work in which solid and creative research and communication skills are essential.

- African American Studies (directed by Conseula Francis, ENGL): As an interdisciplinary minor focused on the study of the African American experience, African American Studies aims to provide students an understanding of the history and culture of African Americans and to introduce students to the diversity of African American experience in a variety of disciplines.

- Archaeology: The minor program recognizes the completion of a course of study designed to highlight the interdisciplinary nature of a field that routinely integrates elements of the social sciences, humanities, arts, and natural sciences.

- British Studies (directed by Tim Carens, ENGL): Students electing to minor in British Studies take 6 credit hours in the history, politics, economics, and/or sociology/anthropology of the British Isles; 6 credit hours in literature, art, architecture, drama, and/or music of the British Isles; 3 credits in a course pertaining to the British Empire; and 3 credits of an integrative capstone.

- Crime, Law, and Society (directed by Ann Stein, SOCY/ANTH): This interdisciplinary minor allows students to take courses in political science, sociology, psychology, philosophy and history as well as interdisciplinary courses on the topic.

- Environmental Studies: The environmental studies minor is offered for students who have an interest in learning more about the natural environment and the ecology of the planet, as well as understanding the relationship of political, social, cultural, and economic activities to that environment. In addition the dual Master’s Environmental Studies/Public Administration program is a popular degree. The MPA program is directed by Jo Ann Ewalt within the political science department.

- European Studies (directed by Bill Olejniczak, HIST): The European Studies Minor is an interdisciplinary program that introduces students to the diverse cultures and nations of Europe through the study of history, literature, languages, visual arts, economics, business, politics, religion and society.

- Neuroscience: The Minor reflects the interdisciplinary nature of neuroscience as the curriculum includes courses from Biology and Psychology as well as Physics, Computer Science, Chemistry, Discovery Informatics, Physiology, and Anthropology.

- Child Life (directed by Susan Simonian, PSYC) is a program shared with the Graduate School and Education, Health, and Human Performance

- Historic Preservation: The program is offered entirely in Charleston, yet graduates earn a diploma from both the College of Charleston and Clemson University. In addition to utilizing the resources of both campuses, students have access to a variety of locations around Charleston and the Carolina Lowcountry that provide ideal field laboratories.
INTERNATIONAL/GLOBAL INITIATIVES

College of Charleston Faculty-Led Study Abroad Programs

HSS faculty and students have been busy traveling to different areas in the world. HSS students represented 31% of all students studying abroad in 2013-14.

During the 2013-14 academic year, HSS faculty led 7 study abroad programs. These programs offered include:

- Barbados
  - Faculty Director: Dr. Anthony Greene, Department of Sociology/African American Studies
  - Course offered: Comparative Black Identity and Blackface in the Global Imaginary (AAST 300; 6 credits total)
  - Description: During this program, students will be taking 6 credits, exploring the island, and working/interacting with students and faculty at the University of the West Indies (UWI). In addition to the CofC course, students will sit in on guest lectures and partake in special curriculum offering provided by UWI (i.e. history of cricket).

- Cambodia and Vietnam
  - Faculty Directors: Dr. Helen Delfeld, Department of Political Science and Dr. Jen Cole Wright, Department of Psychology
  - Courses Offered: Political Science and/or Psychology (POLI 359: Poor Peoples' Movement (for POLI majors), PSYC410: the Developmental Challenges of Poverty and Conflict (for PSYC majors), AND POLI 379/PSYC 410: Emerging from Violence)
  - Description: This program will explore how histories of violence become incorporated into people's individual and collective cultural narratives as well as exploring the various levels at which these cultures make better lives for themselves and their children.
through individual and community efforts, governmental program, and foreign influence particularly the UN and NGOs.

❖ Czech Republic and Poland
Faculty Director: Dr. Robert Westerfelhaus, Department of Communication
Courses Offered: Communication (COMM 315: Ethical Communication in a Multicultural Context AND COMM 336: Rhetorics that Bind and Divide)
Description: Participants will spend a month living and studying in Prague and Krakow, two of Central Europe’s most charming, beautiful, and historically significant cities. The theme for this study abroad program is "Community and Conflict in Multicultural Contexts - Communication that Binds and Divides." The theme will explore, through the two classes offered, communication ethics and rhetoric which will examine a range of multicultural issues with a focus on communication that contributed to the Holocaust.

❖ Paris
Faculty Director: Dr. Valerie Frazier, Department of English
Course Offered: English (ENGL 364: African American Expatriates in Paris)
Description: In this course, students will study the works of Black American expatriate writers and artists in Paris. They will also explore how duality of cultural identity, being both black and American in Europe, encouraged French projections of exoticism and cultural difference onto the black subject.

❖ Spoleto, Italy
Faculty Directors: Bret Lott and Trish Ward, Department of English
Courses Offered: Creative Writing and Literature (ENGL 339: The Travel Memoir: Writing In and Of Place and ENGL 350: Dante and J.K. Rowling)

❖ Trujillo, Spain
Students are immersed in Spanish language and culture through living with experienced host families. Fall 2014 offerings include Biology, English, and Spanish courses.
Morocco

Faculty Directors: Dr. Abdellatif Attafi, Department of French and Dr. Jack Parson, Department of Political Science

Courses Offered: Literature courses in translation, French language, and Political Science (LTAR 250: Arabic Literature in Translation (taught in English), LTFR 250: French Literature in Translation (taught in English), POLI 359: Morocco and Contemporary Africa (taught in English), FREN 361: Current Issues in Morocco, OR FREN 490: Special Topics)

Description: This program will be a twenty-four day immersion in the history, culture, politics, languages and geography of this unique African country. The first portion of the program will take place in Tangier, where students will attend formal classes in the morning, and the afternoon and weekends will be spent on excursions. The second part will consist of touring important sites and cities that may include Agadir, Zagora, Ouarazate, Marrakesh, Casablanca, and Rabat, where students will discover the historical impact of each site. The final portion will be back in Tangier and may include a day trip to Tarifa in Andalusia, Spain.

IV. FACULTY DIVERSITY

RECRUITMENT EFFORTS

The School hired 7 roster faculty in 2013-2014. Successful searches were in Communication, English, History, Psychology and Sociology. Departments within the School regularly place position advertisements in professional journals, national publications and listservs that reach diverse audiences.

At the initiative of the HSS Dean’s office, every member of the Dean’s staff, as well as department chairs and their administrative staff, attended customized diversity training hosted by the Office of Institutional Diversity. Director Kristi Brian and other members of her staff went over various ways to understand diversity, specifically in the workplace.

Since the College does not have a program in place for spousal opportunities, HSS was unable to retain Department of History Assistant Professor Assan Sarr.

V. SCHOOL ASSESSMENT ACTIVITIES

(Attached is the School’s full assessment report)

HSS faculty gives instruction to more than 15,000 students in approximately 550 sections each term. The School supports the institutional mission to:
1. Develop an understanding of the arts, humanities, mathematics, the natural sciences and the social sciences.
2. Encourage students to become conscious of the importance of political, social, economic, and scientific issues of their time.

HSS is committed to annually assessing learning outcomes. The School-wide assessment plan sought to measure the following from the HSS Strategic Plan and the College of Charleston’s Statement of Institutional Goals:
Goal 1: To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning,
Goal 2: To develop global awareness,
Goal 3: To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, and
Goal 4: To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research.

Assessment efforts revealed that on average per academic term from fall 2013 through spring 2014:

Goal 1: 18% (436) of the 2451 HSS majors received individualized instruction enrolling in either an Internship, Academic Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay.

Goal 2: 9.9% (242) HSS majors studied abroad. Of the total students (791) studying abroad on average 31% were HSS majors.

Goal 3: In general, any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing above average when tested on key concepts in the discipline. These findings are summarized by program.

Goal 4: 98.2% of HSS majors during any given term were trained in the methods of scholarly inquiry and research appropriate to their discipline. These HSS majors were enrolled in methods courses, student research apprenticeships, or bachelor’s essays. Given all of these courses are required of the individual majors; it is safe to say that 100% of HSS majors upon graduation have had research training.

VI. SCHOOL HIGHLIGHTS

The faculty, staff and students within the School of Humanities and Social Sciences continue to receive various awards and distinctions throughout the year. Below is a list of examples by department, some of which can also be viewed in the FAS report (attached) and the individual department/program annual reports.

HSS Scholars

Each spring, the School of Humanities and Social Sciences honors graduating seniors who have distinguished themselves by amassing an impressive body of work during their undergraduate careers. The two top students in each of the majors taught within HSS are recognized for their academic achievements as HSS Scholars. A formal ceremony and poster session marks the occasion. Here is our most recent list of award winners.

Graduate Students

A list of examples of graduate student accomplishments includes:

Communication

- Cara Howley secured a summer internship in the Global Communication division at Nike in Portland, OR.
- Helen Adams interned in the Office of Public Relations at MUSC.
- Colin Piacentine was the intern for The Harbor Entrepreneur Center as well as The Citadel Athletics Department.
- Alex Jackson received the College of Charleston EXCEL award as the College’s Outstanding Graduate Student.
- Erin Aylor Burneeko started a new job as the Director of Marketing and Communications for the Charleston Chamber of Commerce.
- Graduate student-athlete, Willis Hall, received back-to-back honors as the CAA Player of the Week during basketball season.

English

- In 2013-14, our graduate students were especially eager to present their work in professional forums. Six students presented twelve essays at a number of different conferences (e.g. Arant, Paul. “Loss of Time and the Fear of Loss: Poe's 'Berenice.'” UGA EGO Conference. University of Georgia. 23 Mar. 2014.)

Environmental Studies

- Friedrich Knuth (advisor: Norman Levine) presented his thesis research entitled “Predicting the Presence of Fish through Benthic Geomorphic Features,” at the American Geophysical Union meeting in San Francisco December 9-13, 2013. Friedrich was also awarded Graduate School Study Abroad Grant for the travel portion of his presentation of his thesis work at the Ocean Sciences Meeting in Honolulu, Hawaii February 23-28, 2014.

Public Administration/Environmental Studies (dual program)

- Melanie Campos: (MPA/MES ‘14) attended two conferences in the past academic year. In January, she went to the National Council for Science and the Environment’s 14th National Conference and Global Forum on Science, Policy and the Environment: Building Climate Solutions in Washington, DC. Melanie attended for the purpose of networking with other individuals about hazard mitigation methods being used in other parts of the country. She presented a research poster titled “An Evaluation and Application of the Community Ratings System in Unincorporated Charleston County, South Carolina,” and was invited to participate in a panel discussion for a symposia session on hazard mitigation and climate adaptation. In April, Melanie attended the American Planning Association’s 2014 National Conference, held in Atlanta, GA to network and learns more about how community planners and other federal agencies are incorporating hazard mitigation and climate change strategies into comprehensive community plans.
ALUMNI ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Students who graduate with a degree in the humanities and social sciences at the College of Charleston are armed with transferrable skills, which allow them to pursue various opportunities and careers post-graduation. Not only do the employees within HSS realize that our alumni are doing amazing things, but so does the College of Charleston Division of Marketing and Communication who frequently feature our alumni in their I Want Your Job series. Below are examples of just a few alumni accomplishments. For instance:

- I Want Your Job No. 21: Record Label Owner
- I Want Your Job No. 19: Cookbook Editor
- I Want Your Job No. 14: Production Assistant at Vanity Fair
- I Want Your Job No. 13: Brand Manager for Alpine Ski Manufacturers

Communication

- Tommy Werner: writer for Food & Wine magazine

Crime, Law and Society

2013-14 HSS ASSESSMENT REPORT

School Mission: In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, we are teacher-scholars committed to the study of human nature and human creations. We seek to deepen our understanding of history and literature, inquire into the character of cultures and societies and, lastly, support the value of ethical and moral reflection.

Our HSS teacher-scholars cultivate in students the skills of creative problem-solving, critical thinking, and writing to discover. We also engage these students in activities that prepare them for productive civic engagement, understanding of different global perspectives and learning as a lifelong pursuit.

Assessment Goals, Methods and Results

Goal 1: To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning.

Method Goal 1: An annual tally will be taken of all HSS majors who have completed an Independent Enrollment Course i.e., Internship, Academic/Research Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay.

Using the previous 2 years as a base line, the current year’s data will be assessed.

Results Goal 1: On average from Fall 2011 through Spring 2013 20% (506) of the 2524 HSS majors participated in an Independent Enrollment Course i.e., Internship, Academic Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay. In AY13-14 18% (436) of the 2451 HSS majors received individualized instruction. These independent enrollments provide students with a highly personalized education. This slight decrease in independent enrollments may reflect a change in curriculum, or simply an increase in roster faculty on sabbatical.

Use of Results Goal 1: The HSS Dean and Associate Dean have reviewed the findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2014. HSS would like to increase these offerings in the future. However, personalized learning opportunities are costly. Any given semester only 1 out of 5 HSS majors have the opportunity to work one-on-one with faculty or participate in an experiential internship experience. Increasing these opportunities requires additional faculty lines and incentives for current faculty to engage in these experiences above and beyond their standard workload.

Results Goal 2: On average from Fall 2011 through Spring 2013 9% (228) of the 2524 HSS majors studied abroad. Of the total students studying abroad (1426) on average 32% were HSS majors. In AY 13-14 9.9% (242) of the 2451 HSS majors studied abroad. This represents 31% of the students studying abroad this year. Over the last 5 years HSS participation in study abroad has increased from AY9-10: 199, AY10-11: 225, AY11-12: 221, AY12-13 235 to AY13-14: 242. For the most part the percentage of HSS students studying abroad has held steady between 9 and 10%. I believe this reflects both a desire to increase global awareness as well as a recovering economy. This is only one measure of developing global awareness. Additional measures would need to address specific course content which is only reasonably accomplished at the program level.

Use of Results Goal 2: The HSS Dean and Associate Dean have reviewed the findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2014. Over the last 2 years HSS allocated some foundation funds toward study abroad scholarships. These were not recurring funds. Without additional scholarships there is little hope of increasing participation in the study abroad programs.

Goal 3: To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline.
Method 3: HSS will look at aggregate data from individual program assessments in the school.
Results Goal 3: In general any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing above average when tested on key concepts in the discipline. For details see individual program reports.

Goal 4: To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research.

Method Goal 4: An annual tally will be taken of all HSS majors who have completed a research methods course or a research oriented independent enrollment. Using the previous 2 years as a base line, the current year’s data will be assessed.

Results Goal 4: On average from Fall 2011 through Spring 2013 88% (2224) of the 2524 HSS majors were being trained in the methods of scholarly inquiry and research appropriate to their discipline. In AY13-14 98% (2408) of the 2451 HSS majors were enrolled in research methods courses. These HSS majors were enrolled in methods courses, student research apprenticeships, or bachelor’s essays. Given all of these courses are at the upper level and required of the individual majors, it is safe to say that 100% of HSS majors upon graduation have had research training. This shift from 88% to 98% reflects changes in major requirements.

Use of Results Goal 4: The HSS Dean and Associate Dean have reviewed the findings and will share them with HSS chairs and program directors in Fall 2014. Given 100% of our majors at some point receive methods training appropriate to their discipline, HSS would like to increase the quality not quantity of these offerings. Research methods training is not only limited by faculty availability but, also by access to state of the art lab and computer facilities. Current physical resources are inadequate to provide our students with methods training to enter the workforce or continue their education in graduate school. Changes implemented were at the program level and are described in the program reports.

Program Improvement Summary

1. To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning.

Independent enrollments provide students with a highly personalized education. On average from Fall 2011 through Spring 2013 20% (506) of the 2524 HSS majors participated in an Independent Enrollment Course i.e., Internship, Academic Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay. In AY13-14 18% (436) of the 2451 HSS majors received individualized instruction. Over the last four years HSS independent enrollments have fluctuated between 436 and 555 students (18% to 23%). Providing opportunities to work one-on-one with faculty is costly. Increasing these opportunities requires additional faculty lines and incentives for current faculty to engage in these experiences above and beyond their standard workload.

2. To develop global awareness.

On average from Fall 2011 through Spring 2013 9% (228) of the 2524 HSS majors studied abroad. Of the total students studying abroad (1426) on average 32% were HSS majors. In AY13-14 9.9% (242) of the 2451 HSS majors studied abroad. This represents 31% of the students studying abroad this year. For the most part the percentage of HSS students studying abroad has held steady between 9 and 10%. I believe this reflects both a desire to increase global awareness as well as a recovering economy. This is only one measure of developing global awareness. Additional measures would need to address specific course content which is only reasonably accomplished at the program level. While HSS has been able to provide some financial support to students, these were not recurring funds. Without additional scholarships there is little hope of increasing participation in the study abroad programs.

3. To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline.

In general, any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing above average when tested on key concepts in the discipline. For details see individual program reports.

Numbers have been updated to reflect 2013-2014 report

Section 2: Review and Synthesize Program Assessment Plans

A. Describe the School’s overall support of strategic initiatives and the institutional mission for 2011-2012. Provide evidence of this support.

School Mission: In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, we are teacher-scholars committed to the study of human nature and human creations. We seek to deepen our understanding of history and literature, inquire into the character of cultures and societies and, lastly, support the value of ethical and moral reflection.

Our HSS teacher-scholars cultivate in students the skills of creative problem-solving, critical thinking, and writing to discover. We also engage these students in activities that prepare them for productive civic engagement, understanding of different global perspectives and learning as a lifelong pursuit.

Given our mission statement and simply by providing instruction in the humanities and social sciences to over 15,000 students in approximately 550 sections each term we have demonstrated support of the institutional mission to:

1. through a strong core curriculum, to develop an understanding of the arts, humanities, mathematics, the natural sciences and the social sciences.
2. encourage students to become conscious of the importance of political, social, economic, and scientific issues of their time.

As such when developing a school wide assessment plan we sought to measure the following from the “HSS Strategic Plan” and/or the “College of Charleston’s Statement of Institutional Goals”:

Goal 1: To provide students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning,
Goal 2: To develop global awareness,
Goal 3: To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, and
Goal 4: To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research.
In so doing our assessments efforts revealed that on average per academic term from Fall 2013 through Spring 2014:

Goal 1: 18% (436) of the 2451 HSS majors received individualized instruction enrolling in either an Internship, Academic Apprenticeship, Tutorial, Fieldwork, or Bachelor’s Essay.

Goal 2: 9.9% (242) HSS majors studied abroad. Of the total students (791) studying abroad on average 31% were HSS majors.

Goal 3: In general, any assessment at the program level of competencies in the major demonstrated that HSS majors are performing above average when tested on key concepts in the discipline. These findings are summarized by program.

Goal 4: 98.2% of HSS majors during any given term were trained in the methods of scholarly inquiry and research appropriate to their discipline. These HSS majors were enrolled in methods courses, student research apprenticeships, or bachelor’s essays. Given all of these courses are required of the individual majors, it is safe to say that 100% of HSS majors upon graduation have had research training.

B. Describe learning themes being measured in your School and discuss ways in which student performance expectations are being met.

On a program specific level the following “learning themes” were measured in some degree or another from the “College of Charleston’s Statement of Institutional Goals”

1. To develop reading, writing and oral communication skills.
2. To develop critical thinking and problem solving skills.
3. To help students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, including:
   a. the ability to recount and explain basic facts and postulates of the discipline;
   b. the ability to use that knowledge in the solution of problems with which the discipline concerns itself;
   c. proficiency in the use of the techniques and tools of the discipline;
   d. an awareness of the resources of the discipline and the ability to seek out and assimilate knowledge in the discipline;
   e. the ability to relate knowledge in that discipline to other disciplines.
4. To train students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research.

C. Describe particular strengths or challenges that are demonstrated in the Program Assessment Reports. Discuss ways in which results can be used for Program/School improvement and the budgetary needs these improvements represent (e.g., new faculty/staff lines, physical resources, etc.).
Major strengths in the School of Humanities and Social Sciences are in providing students with a highly personalized education enhanced by opportunities for experiential learning, helping students acquire depth of knowledge and competence in at least one academic discipline, and training students in the method of scholarly inquiry and research. We would like to increase these offerings.

Personalized learning opportunities and methods training are costly. Any given semester only 1 out of 4 or 5 HSS majors have the opportunity to work one-on-one with faculty or participate in an experiential internship experience. Increasing these opportunities requires additional faculty lines and incentives for current faculty to engage in these experiences above and beyond their standard workload. Research methods training is not only limited by faculty availability but, also by access to state of the art lab and computer facilities. Current physical resources are inadequate to provide our students with methods training to enter the workforce or continue their education in graduate school.
